Beazley Institute for Health Law and Policy Tenth Annual Symposium on Health Law and Policy: Innovations in Life Sciences and Stakeholder and Agency Responses

Call for Papers

The Beazley Institute for Health Law and Policy at Loyola University Chicago School of Law and Annals of Health Law invite original research paper submissions on innovations in life sciences and stakeholder and agency responses for presentation at our Tenth Annual Health Law Symposium. The Symposium will take place at Loyola University Chicago School of Law on Friday, October 28, 2016 at 9:30am.

The Symposium will explore recent innovations in life sciences and responses by regulatory agencies including FDA, FTC, and DOJ as well as stakeholder responses and recommended next steps for policy and regulatory reforms.

A range of topics will be considered, including but not limited to gene editing, mobile health, cybersecurity, personalized/precision medicine, 3-D printing technologies, Cancer Moonshot 2020, biosimilars and interchangeable biologics, and vaccine development and incentives (e.g., Zika).

REVIEW PROCEDURE AND TIMELINE

Submission Information: Those interested in participating, please send a 1000-word abstract to health-law@luc.edu by May 31, 2016.

Authors will be notified of decisions no later than June 15, 2016. If your abstract is selected, a full paper will be due by January 6, 2017.

Covered expenses: Hotel, travel, ground transportation, three provided meals.

Questions: E-mail questions to health-law@luc.edu

Previous Symposiums: For information on previous Beazley Institute Health Law Symposiums, please visit http://www.luc.edu/law/centers/healthlaw/events/symposium.html.

About the Beazley Institute: Established in 1984, the Beazley Institute for Health Law and Policy at Loyola University Chicago School of Law has evolved into a nationally-recognized resource dedicated to the education of health law leaders and policymakers, and to the study and furtherance of the health law field.

Loyola’s health law curriculum boasts over 50 substantive courses focusing on topics such as reimbursement and finance, government regulation and policy, and corporate and transactional health law. Students gain first-hand knowledge of the health care industry by externing at local hospitals and health care entities, participating in seminars, and regularly interacting with the practicing bar through Loyola’s continuing education events. Students also enhance their knowledge by publishing the Institute’s law review on health law and policy, Annals of Health Law. Each year, the Annals of Health Law Summer Issue is chiefly devoted to the annual Symposium topic that varies each year. Scholarly proceedings of this Symposium will be published in the Annals in 2017.