National Glass Association Has the Answers for Architects

Vienna, Va. (June 25, 2018)—The National Glass Association (NGA) actively promoted the architectural glass industry by participating in AIA’s Architecture Expo last week at the Jacob K. Javits Convention Center.

The association takes part in the annual event to broadcast its many resources for the architectural community. NGA’s participation was elevated this year after combining with the Glass Association of North America (GANA) and utilizing their array of technical knowledge and services.

NGA’s booth theme “Got Questions about Glass Codes? We’ve Got Answers!” resonated with the architects and specifiers in attendance. NGA’s technical services & advocacy director Urmilla Jokhu-Sowell and code consultant Tom Culp fielded many technical codes questions in the booth, including questions on fire-rated glazing, security and safety glazing, dynamic glazing, energy efficiency, and jumbo glazing.

NGA’s participation in AIA is part of a concerted, ongoing outreach to the architectural community on behalf of its members.

ABOUT NGA

Founded in 1948, the National Glass Association (NGA), www.glass.org, combined with the Glass Association of North America (GANA), www.glasswebsite.com on February 1, 2018 to form the largest trade association serving the architectural glass and metals industry supply chain, including glazing contractors, full-service glass companies, glass fabricators, primary glass manufacturers and suppliers to the industry. It is a technical powerhouse that brings some of the best minds to the table to create technical resources and promote and advocate for glass in buildings. NGA’s education and training programs—both online at MyGlassClass.com and in-person at association-sponsored events—and its official publication Glass Magazine, keep the industry knowledgeable and well-informed. NGA also produces the industry’s largest annual trade show in the Americas, GlassBuild America, and hosts the Building Envelope Contractors Conference, the Glazing Executives Forum and other educational and networking events, bringing together thousands of industry professionals to help them build more profitable businesses.
