2. Shakespeare actually went missing, at least from the perspective of a Shakespeare scholar: he disappears from all historical records for six years: in the time between starting a family in Stratford and his early career as a man of the Theatre in London. Nobody knows what he did in the years in between. What do you think he was up to?

We also don’t quite know what Shakespeare looked like. Compare the three portraits that are supposed to show Shakespeare: what do you think, what do these portraits tell us about him?
